

No tickets remaining for Univision democratic presidential candidates forum

Due to overwhelming student response, unfortunately no tickets remain for Destino 2008, the democratic presidential candidates forum being presented by the University and Univision on Sunday, September 9 at the BankUnited Center on the Coral Gables campus. The University is currently planning other events, including watch parties, related to the forum. More details about those events will be made available soon.